New Shoots

The Ambience Newsletter

Message from Principal's Desk

Dear Children and Parents,

Greetings!

The new academic year began thankfully the way we all wanted it for a long time.

My deepest gratitude to our young learners, parents and staff members for working tirelessly as a team for a smooth transition to physical work in the school.

The external lockdowns and unpredictable moments have strengthened our resolve as we accepted the challenge with aplomb and learned then essential lessons to forge our ways ahead. Building new habits is a key to developing greater resilience and being more productive. In fact, habits are the compound interest of efforts taken for self-improvement.

It's interesting to note, how designing our environment and making tiny cumulative adjustments paves the way for success.

Whenever we want to change our behaviour or build new habits asking

these simple questions can be helpful.

1. How can I make it obvious?

2. How can I make it attractive?

3. How can I make it easy?

4. How can I make it satisfying?

Let's enjoy the process of self improvement through learning new habits.

We are pleased to share the first issue of New Shoots 2022-23 with you, hope you would enjoy the creative endeavours of Ambignites, stay safe and stay blessed.

Pre-Nursery 'The Bouncing Bunnies'

The Bouncing Bunnies started the year with lots of fun-filled activities. They celebrated the Earth Day with lots of hands on activities and rhymes. We all need shelter and feel protected in the comfort of our homes with our families. The event culminated with the thoughtful message and learning.

The little ones engaged in life skills which enhance their fine motor skills through myriad of activities such as tearing, pasting, pottery and fun session with buddies.

Yellow Day was enjoyed by one and all and they explored the colour in many ways. Family tree was such an enjoyable experience where each one of them narrated stories about their family members.

Summer Fun before the vacations was enjoyed by all followed by a class party,
They were all dressed for Hawaiian Theme made amazing props such as hats. Day ended with enjoyable movie session relished with chips and juice.

Creative CORNER

Poetry and Creative Writing help the learners to learn how to write, read, and understand any text better. It can give students a healthy outlet for surging emotions. This corner is exclusively given to the learners of our school to express themselves and unleash the writer within them!

UNCONDITIONAL LOVE!!

Malti was a 12 year old girl living at the banks of river Godvari, along with her grandmother. One day she was playing with pebbles outside her hut when she noticed an injured white dog with a brown nose. She quickly brought some bandages form her medicine cabinet and when she was putting the dressing on the dog, it bit her. Malti was in great shock, and she screamed with pain. The dog ran away. Malti told her grandmom about the incident. Her grandmom suggested that the dog might be very dangerous and she needed to stay away from him.

The next day, Malti had to visit her mother's house. As soon as she got there, she noticed that the same dog was sitting on the front porch. Malti was very disturbed. She informed her mother about the whole biting incident which had happened a day earlier. She was too scared to touch the dog , however she noticed that the dog still had some injury marks.

Malti decided to cure him immediately. She picked him up, he was very heavy. She put a bandage without worrying that he might bite her again. This time, the ferocious dog started to lick her hands. Malti and the dog became best friends.

OUTSIDE MY WINDOW

A whisper over there,
A murmer over here,
Through the windows of my soul
I see,

A table of executers ..I see,
Judging me
All those judgmental eyes on me

I don't see safety
I only see danger ahead of me
These windows show no good,
Only insecurities.

These windows show a big world,
That I'm too small to face
I feel the glass is broken,
And has shattered upon my face.

But,
A voice inside me
Tells me that sometimes,
These windows might lie.
And that our perception of reality
Is influenced by the way,
we think of life.

These windows may sometimes be good,
Sometimes bad
It all depends on the number of grains of sand.

SHOWERS SENT SOON

House on the 2nd floor
Water makes the floorboards creek
Flood in the deserted moor
Cackling like a freak

Mop, broom and bucket,
Operation 127 started,
Clean, swipe and repeat
Crisis of cleanliness sorted

Schools gets burst open,
Fewer kids rushing into classes,
Windows, clothes, and floors soaken',
Eyes blinded by foggy glasses

Wish this day comes more often
Cause it's responsible for heat's coffin
Chocolates, candies and muffins
Hiccups, choking' and coughing'

Midweek Slump

Am I the one?
Or do we all feel this?

Like a sloth making its way to summit
Like a singer choking on his lyrics

The fear of the unknown
The times when your entirely lone

It climbs up on you
Like a grapevine on the top

Making you dull and wanting you to drop
That unmade bed, the broken oven
That calls for it to be fixed..
You long for the weekend all of a sudden

Alas came the weekend, for you to sway
The scariest part is..
It's soon gonna go away..
