Dear Learners!

My heartiest congratulation to you all for your hard work and the successful culmination of Term one. Your stupendous performance in the Learner Led Conference has won all our hearts and strengthened our faith in the sincerity of your efforts and commitment to the tasks assigned.

Children as you all know that every year around the same time, after the jovial festive celebrations, we all suddenly shift our gaze to climate-related issues. This is the time when the sudden realization of our duties towards our planet and environment dawns on us.

So, in order to grapple with this mammoth problem all we need to do is Start thinking now and Think Green. Thinking Green means being aware of our interconnectedness with the world and reflecting on the unintended damage we cause to nature in the daily course of our lives. Thinking green leads to acting green - taking corrective action to make environmental responsibility a reality. Our responsibility begins with taking small efforts in this direction which has the ability to affect significant change. Here is the list of those small efforts which can initiate change.

1. REDUCE OUR CONSUMPTION The first step to reducing our impact on the environment is reducing the amount of resources we consume and use. Think twice before you buy or use anything.

2. REDUCE OUR WASTE The opportunities to reduce our waste are nearly endless. Think before you print or photocopy. When you must print or copy, do it double-sided. Edit on-screen, not on paper. Use e-mail to minimize paper use.

3. REDUCE OUR ENERGY CONSUMPTION Turn off unused or unnecessary lights. Use LED/fluorescent bulbs (instead of incandescent bulbs). Minimize the use of screen savers and instead enable power management features and purchase only energy-efficient products.

4. REDUCE OUR OIL CONSUMPTION & POLLUTION – Share your insight with your parents about driving responsibly and the need to switch to fuel-efficient vehicles, this small effort can initiate big change.

Let me tell you that your thoughtful action is important and your voice has the ability to make the world a better place for us all. So, remember you are the right person to act and this is the right moment to begin.

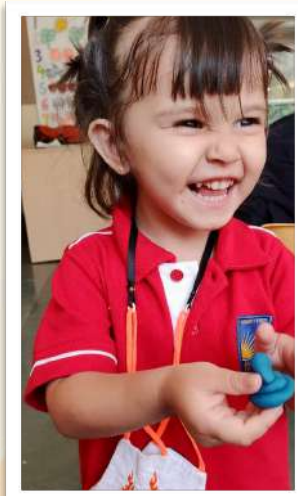

Best wishes and have a happy Sustainable Life.

God Bless you all!

Secret Mission : Mr Rusty aka Mr Bond

We spent an hour going through the twists and turns of the mountain roads leading to the beautiful Landour. The Oak trees, Pine trees and numerous Deodar trees welcomed us with open arms. The whistling Himalayan breeze blowing though the leaves were bending forward as if they were showing the way to his house.

By 'His', I mean Mr Ruskin Bond. My mind was bursting with questions I would ask him. Did he like reading science fiction? Did he like cats? Were all the characters in his award winning books a part of his imagination or were they real?

I was still lost in my world , when out of the blue a tall person stopped the car. He asked my parents to kindly walk to the nearby tea stall to seek shelter form the landslide which had just started.I was very upset because we were allowed to resume our journey only after two hours. I wanted to get there in a flash of a second and besides, it was almost 8 am in the morning. We had gotten up at 3 am and I was really cranky and soo tired!

The car stopped in front of a really old building. It looking nothing like Ivy cottage. I looked for the bell , but what I found was a ferocious German Shepard who started barking gruffly. My mother instructed that she could only take me and my sister inside if I could shoo the dog away. Our mission was unsuccessful.
A few days later in our society a competition was organised, and the child with the best story writing skill could meet Ruskin Bond. I gave my 100 percent and got the opportunity.

Ruskin Bond had a warm smile, he was wearing a sleeveless sweater and was extremely punctual. There were bundles of books in his room and I could sense a small fireplace too. He shared with us his varied experiences which he had as a child. How he worked as a waiter, a cashier at a till, and had done many other odd jobs. His first book experience and the world which had no book agents. It was relatively easy back then to get your book published. His life in Jersey where he met many characters who are in his books. His sharp memory is due to the heavy brunches he has till date and he has a little writing corner where he still uses a typewriter. He writes everyday at 7 am , then goes for a walk with his dog.

My meeting with him will be etched in my memory forever and it was like a dream I never wanted to get out of. I have got his new autobiography which he has signed.

The Day When I Ran Out of Water

I saw a bottle full of blue water
I quickly drank it but it was sea water!

I called the the plumber to repair the pipe!
He replied 'your whole pipeline is damaged!'

My mother could not be disturbed
She was busy in office

Thirsty I ran to the market to buy a bottle of water
The shopkeeper replied ' I only have sea water'

I was thirsty
I was mad
I saw a shop named 'water'
I bought it , but alas it was again sea water

Water our life

Everything needs water
to survive

From us to the bees
in their hives

Water is a need for all

Without it life will fall

Water is something we have to save

in the ocean every single wave

Everything needs water to survive

From us to the bees in their hives

It's up to us to make a change

Then a clear future is in the range

A Noisy Café

A world of people

Who are here to arrive-

Arrive in a space of low music.

Instagram-my coffees and filters rustic.

I sit with a quiet meditative song

Thinking and overthinking

Every word said to me -Ever.

My coffee arrives -

With a beautiful swirl of cream,

Some coffee beans thrown around it,

Some random aesthetic drawn

With chocolate sauce and sprinklers

Maybe the beauty of it will take away the jitters

From my very anxious mind,

Or maybe the caffeine will hit it up all too bad

But here I sit, with a heart full of ideas and thoughts,

I am scared, I am nervous

To get anymore ahead in my path,

And yet, I know I need to,

And I must walk right ahead.

A girl is watching me from across,

What is she thinking?
